Dear Slinger Bag User

Advisory Reminder – Best Practices Battery Charging

We wish to remind Slinger users NOT to leave their Slinger Bags on charge for very extended periods of time. The longevity of the battery will be safeguarded if the Slinger is taken off charge when charging is complete. Lithium-ion batteries can fail over time if left on charge indefinitely (days and weeks at a time). Batteries that fail due to being on charge for indefinite long periods may not be subject to valid warranty claims.

Slinger is issuing the following reminders and best practice advice about charging your Slinger Bag:

- Please use only the dedicated charging unit that is supplied with the Slinger Bag. Do not use any other charger that 'looks like it will fit'. Spare Slinger charger packs are available to purchase should users require them.
- Charge the lithium-ion battery in your Slinger Bag for a MAXIMUM of 5 hours in any charging period. The led light on the charger plug turns GREEN (from RED) when charging is complete.
- Once charging is complete it is best practice to take the Slinger Bag off charge.

For convenience, please remember that the 'Generation 2' Slinger Bags have two options for users to charge the Slinger up. Option 1 is to charge the Slinger with the battery in-situ. Option 2 allows users to remove the battery from the bag and charge separately. This may be more convenient if users wish to leave the Slinger Bag at the club, in the car or garage whilst the battery is charging. The Slinger battery can be easily removed for charging within a few minutes. Please see the Battery User Instructions showing how to remove the battery from its' housing should it prove more convenient for you to charge the battery separately by following the
